Association Chair receives Hertsmere Civic Award 2019

For the 3rd year in succession an association committee member has received a civic award for services to the community.

Martine Eni, Association Chair received her civic award, from the Mayor of Hertsmere Cllr Brenda Batten, at a ceremony at Elstree Studio's on Saturday 23rd March 2019, a glittering evening.

Martine received her award for the work she does with the twin town association and the Diversity Festival, which organised an inaugural weekend of activities promoting the cultural community within the town and borough last October.

Martine was the person who thought of the idea of the Town Crier in Elstree & Borehamwood, which is now a regular publication within the town.

The award presented follows on from two other committee members, Nick Male and Andrew Grady, who were presented with awards in previous years recognizing their work within the community and for their involvement with the twin town association.
